

Experiential Learning

What is EL?

Experiential Learning (EL) offers the opportunity for you to be an active participant in your own learning. EL will give you a different focus—a new way of looking at the world and a clearer understanding of your skills related to future employment. EL creates a connection between classroom learning and the “real world” where you have the chance to explore your own learning in a meaningful way.

What does EL look like at Huron?

EL at Huron takes many forms across all programs, both in and out of the classroom. You can participate in case-based learning, an international field experience, a unique research opportunity, or a community engaged project. These could take shape as a full course experience, a small project, or anything in between!

Why should I take EL?

Where will this get you? That is up to you! EL gives you the chance to broaden your horizons in your community and beyond. It also lets you develop transferable skills including communication, collaboration and different approaches to problem solving. What you gain from EL is valuable to your education and experience at Huron and will equip you with knowledge and skills that will be an asset in the workplace.
